THE SHEPARDS AS HOSTS.

Former Miss Gould Continues Her Philanthropic Activities.

There is probably no woman in America possessing great wealth that does as much for the poor of the land as does Mrs. Finley J. Shepard, formerly Miss Helen Gould. One of the most successful outings was recently given at her magnificent summer home at Tarrytown, N. Y. Five hundred mothers and children who were in charge of the Volunteers of America were guests on this occasion, and the mothers rested throughout the entire day while the tots played games and were served a good dinner.

Since her marriage to Mr. Shepard the former Miss Gould has not ceased her charity work one iota and keeps herself busy devising new methods to make other people happy. Since her marriage Mr. Shepard likewise has become much interested in the philanthropic activities of his wife, and on such occasions as the dinner at Tarrytown, when the couple had 500 guests for a single day, he is always on the scene, taking part in the games with the children and seeing to it that everything passes off smoothly.

Prior to her marriage the work in which Miss Gould was most interested
